

JIM LAMPLEY

Broadcaster / Producer / Entrepreneur

Jim Lampley is one of America's most accomplished broadcasters. Lampley has a vast array of credits in television, radio, movies and the Internet. Lampley has the distinction of covering more Olympics than any other individual.

Jim Lampley first appeared on national television in 1974, taking on the role of "college age reporter" on ABC's national telecasts of college football. Lampley concluded graduate school at the University of North Carolina a few weeks later.

Presently, Lampley is best known for his work as the blow-by-blow announcer on all World Championship Boxing and HBO Pay-Per-View productions. In twenty plus years at HBO, Lampley has garnered multiple Emmys for the network's coverage of Wimbledon and reporting on "Real Sports with Bryant Gumbel."

Lampley's 2004 appearance, as the NBC host of the Athens games daytime coverage, marked his twelfth Olympic assignment as a broadcaster, equaling the number attended by the legendary Jim McKay. His work at Torino was a record-setting 13th Olympic assignment, followed by the Beijing Olympics in 2008.

Lampley's production company, Atticus Entertainment, currently has a first look deal at HBO.

Jim Lampley lives in Del Mar, California with son Aaron. His daughters Brooke, Victoria and Andrea Walker are out thriving in the world.